Sioux Falls Based Tri-State Flooring's Wellness Program is a Huge Success

Tri-State Flooring, a small company with 25 employees located in Sioux Falls, has owners who care about their employees' health. They understand the benefit that a wellness program can bring not only for the employees but also for their company as a whole. In April 2012, Tri-State Flooring, with assistance from WellConneXions, incorporated wellness into their company culture and it has been a huge success. Their goal was met right out of the gate with 85% commitment from employees and full engagement and encouragement from leadership.

Their program is comprehensive and includes not only lifestyle wellness but also risk-focused wellness. Each employee is provided a personal Health Enhancement Coach that is available to educate, encourage, and support them along their journey to wellness. Their calendar of events for the year includes clinical risk evaluations, activity challenges that include off-site employees, community activities for employees and spouses, as well as educational sessions and information focused on the outcomes. Their wellness team has been pivotal in the development and success of their program and has voluntarily committed to create a foundation for a successful future. The commitment, participation, excitement and support Tri-State has from the owners have truly positioned their company for a very bright future!
